4.9 System Sound

The system sound is responsible for playing system related sound. The sound is in generally an announcements (voice) to inform the user on current activities or errors and warnings. The default sound for announcements is based on the dutch language, but there shall be a provision to support also other languages.

4.9.1 Non-Functional Requirements

NFR-ident	Requirement	Reference
NFR-SSND-001	The sound player shall provide a method to play a single sound, as a non-blocking (asynchronous) task, without waiting for task to finish.
NFR-SSND-002	The sound player shall provide a method to play a playlist, as a non-blocking (asynchronous) task, without waiting for task to finish.
NFR-SSND-003	The sound player shall provide a method to stop an active play sound task
NFR-SSND-004	All the sound files shall be available at a defined location.
NFR-SSND-005	The sound player shall provide a method to change the language preference of the sound. Default is dutch language. The new language preference shall be made permanent.
NFR-SSND-006	Each of the sound files shall have a normalized volume level.
NFR-SSND-007	All sound files shall have the same audio file format.
NFR-SSND-008	Any failure during processing of the sound shall be reported.
NFR-SSND-009	[Testing]The sound player shall provide a method to report which sound file is currently played in the sound task.	